

Observational Work Experience

Discover career possibilities through real-world workplace experiences

A supportive way to explore career options, learn about different industries and prepare for future employment opportunities.

What is Observational Work Experience?

Observational Work Experience (OWE) gives people the opportunity to explore workplaces, learn about different roles and industries, and build confidence for future employment.

By observing workplace activities in a real-world setting, participants can gain valuable insight into workplace expectations and potential career pathways.

Important

OWE is observation only.

Participants do not perform work duties or productive tasks and are not expected to undertake work during the placement.

Is OWE Right for You?

OWE may be suitable if you:

- Want to explore career options
- Would like to build confidence in workplace settings
- Are preparing for future employment opportunities
- Want to better understand a particular role or industry
- Are interested in learning more about workplace expectations

Benefits of OWE

Through OWE, you can:

- Explore different workplaces and industries
- Discover roles that align with your interests
- Build confidence in a workplace environment
- Gain valuable insight into the world of work
- Better understand potential career pathways
- Take positive steps towards future employment opportunities
